

Claims

1. Method for transmitting to a user, via the integrated services digital network 5 ISDN and with use of a viewpoint, information offered by a provider from the Internet, including the steps:
 - following establishment of a connection from a personal computer to the 10 provider via the Internet by means of ISDN, a notice is contained in the information offered by the provider that the offered information can also be retrieved directly via the ISDN, in improved transmission quality, via a viewpoint,
 - for the purpose of improving the transmission quality of the offered 15 information, the connection via the Internet is interrupted by the user and a connection is established to the viewpoint of the provider via the ISDN and the information is transmitted,
 - following completion of the transmission via the ISDN, the user selects 20 whether or not the connection via the Internet is to be restored.
2. Method according to Claim 1, the notice on the viewpoint of the provider appears on the display screen of the personal computer in such a way that the Internet connection being interrupted and the ISDN connection 25 established automatically through a mouse click.
3. Method according to Claim 1, wherein following establishment of the ISDN connection, the user can select whether the transmission is to be effected via a B channel or via two B channels.